

OUR TRIP WILL CONTINUE...

Day 6, September, 4th

Smooth like peanut butter♪

On the way to the airport, we dropped by Pic's, a peanut factory. It was a huge factory and we could see how one of the famous peanut butter in NZ was made there. The taste of them was different from Japanese one and really good! Some of us bought peanut butters as a gift.

And we farewelled Yuina and Mary there. We'll see Yuina in 2 months and Mary next year in NZ again! Mary did many things for us, she is our grandma in NZ. She always said "Hayaku~!" to make us hurry and it will stick in our head forever.

And it was the last day with Ms. Hashimoto, our tour guide for 5 days. Thanks to her, we've learned many things in NZ. To be honest, it was a little bit challenging to listen to what kiwi people say for me because of our differences of English accent. She helped us to understand their languages.

We have the high ground !

After arriving in Auckland, we went to the Sky Tower, the highest tower in the southern hemisphere. It was a sunny day, so we had a perfect view of Auckland from the 60th floor. There were some parts of the floor made of glasses and it was really scary to walk on there. If you have a chance, you can do a bungee jump from the middle of the tower. I want to try someday!

Having traditional fish and chips

We finally could eat fish and chips at the restaurant of the hotel. For most of us, it was the first time to have it, and they seemed to like it. Auckland was a really great town and we recognized there were many people from various countries. It was so fun to just walk around there. Also, we found some shops where we will be able to buy souvenirs tomorrow.
