On the fourth day, I visited an elementary school and was assigned to a class of five-year-olds. At first, I was anxious—wondering how I could bond with them and teach them when they spoke English so quickly and my own English wasn't perfect. However, by proactively talking to them throughout the day, I managed to win them over and communicate effectively with everyone. I learned once again the importance of not giving up.

On the fourth day, I went to an elementary school. The children were overjoyed when I wrote their names in hiragana, which was adorable, and it made me happy too. We had a class where we drew Maori pictures and played ball outside. What I felt most strongly was that it was very different from Japan, and very free.

Today, I visited a school with students ranging from about 3 to 12 years old and had the opportunity to interact with many different people. In the evening, there was a welcome party, where I was able to talk with students from Motueka High School who were different from my buddy. It was a lot of fun.

On the 4th day of the New Zealand training, we visited an elementary school and actually played origami and multiplication games that elementary school students do in class together. It was a lot of fun to interact with small children.

4日目は、小学校訪問をしました。私は5歳のクラスの担当になり、最初は子供は英語を話すのが早いし、完璧に英語を話せない中でどうやって仲良くなって教えていこうと不安でしたが、最後まで積極的に話しかけることで心を開いてくれて、皆とコミュニケーションを取ることができました。諦めない大切さを改めて学びました。
